

College of Arts and Sciences
 Department of English | Creative Writing Program
 Table 3: Student Learning Outcomes

Masters in Creative Writing

Outcome Type	Outcome	Assessment & Evaluation Process
Student Learning	Upon completion of the course of instruction, the student will be able to operate the various print and new media forms of editorial submission and evaluation in the field of creative writing.	This will result in 100% of members of a three-year cohort having practical experience in editorial work in both print and new media formats Method(s): Course Embedded Assignment (Often in tandem with exam question bank) and Internship Evaluation of Specific Activity.
Student Learning	Upon completion of the course of instruction, the student will be able to generate a publishable manuscript of fiction, poetry, or creative non-fiction.	This will result in 100% of students passing their thesis defense Method(s): Faculty Committee Evaluation of Dissertation and Thesis or Treatise.
Program Outcome	By the end of the year, the program will apply successfully for employment or PhD work.	This will result in 90% of graduates finding full-time positions in teaching, higher education, secondary education, and/or publishing, or pursuing PhD work, as evidenced by survey results.

Source: FSU Institutional Effectiveness Portal, 2017-18.